

Advertisements for Myself

NORMAN MAILER
Advertisements for Myself

“Like many another vain,
empty, and bullying
body of our time. I have been running for President for these last ten years in the privacy of my mind...”

Advertisements for Myself, a diverse and freewheeling tour through Mailers early career, covers the many subjects with which he grapples for the rest of his life: sex, race, politics, literature, and the systems of power that shape American life. There are lists, interviews, poems, confessions, postscripts, two Tables of Contents (one chronological, one thematic), undergraduate short stories, fragments from a one-act play and of course, Mailers classic, groundbreaking essays, including The White Negro (Superficial Reflections on the Hipster), perhaps Mailers most prescient early polemic, and Mind of an Outlaw, which lends its name to Mailers latest, and first posthumous, collection. A playful, unclassifiable snapshot of American culture at the end of the fifties, Advertisements for Myself, is also a cornerstone of Mailers long and prolific career: In this volume, declared The New York Times in 1959, Mr. Mailer, at 36, shows once again that he is the most versatile if not the most significant talent of his generation.
