

Boot Hill Payoff

Five men were riding down the winding road that led to San Leon, and one was singing, in a toneless monotone: Early in the mornin in the month of May, Brady came down on the mornin train. Brady came down on the Shinin Star. And he shot Mr. Duncan in behind the bar! Shut up! Shut up! It was the youngest of the riders who ripped out like that. A lanky, tow-headed kid, with a touch of pallor under his tan, and a rebellious smolder in his hot eyes.
