

Redemption Road (Martin Calvary Book 3)

MARTIN CALVARY RETURNS IN BOOK THREE OF THE ACCLAIMED ACTION THRILLER SERIES. After almost a year on the run, Martin Calvary, veteran of the war in Afghanistan and assassin for MI6, has returned to the fold. He's working once again for the Chapel, a division of British Intelligence so clandestine not even the Prime Minister knows about it, and one committed to the elimination of enemies of the British State. By any means necessary. During a routine operation in Lisbon, Calvary uncovers the identity of a man whose being hunted by not only MI6, but every other major intelligence service in the world. A man whose nationality is unknown, and whose ideology is terrifyingly obscure. A man known by the ancient Sumerian name Alal. The Destroyer. An arms dealer responsible for some of the greatest terrorist atrocities of recent times. Calvary establishes that Alal has links with a Russian oligarch. But Moscow itself wants Alal brought to heel. The SVR, successor to the Soviet KGB, makes Britain an offer. Let's co-operate. Thrown into an uneasy alliance with the Kremlin, Calvary follows Alal's trail to South Africa and, with violence and betrayal threatening him from every side, northward into Africa's deadly, war-torn heart: the Democratic Republic of Congo. As he closes in on his target, and the true horror of Alal's intentions is revealed, Calvary must rely on the help of a ragged band of mercenaries, among them a white supremacist from South Africa's apartheid era, a former Marxist guerilla, and a Sudanese fellow Chapel agent seeking vengeance on the Destroyer, Alal, who butchered her family. As a soldier in Afghanistan, Calvary once failed his comrades. Their ghosts haunt him to this day. Now, at last, he has a chance at redemption. If the traitor in his outfit doesn't gain the upper hand... Thrilling, terrifying, and epic in scope,
