Blake: I am a brother I am a police detective I am a contract killer I dont want to love I dont want to feel I dont want EMPATHY. They say some people are born with decreased activity in the front central lobe causing them a deficiency in empathy. Maybe thats true about me but whether I was born this way or created in a moment of evil, empathy was something I didnt possess until her green eyes met mine in the mirror and I couldnt take her life. I didnt want to feel, didnt want this woman in my life complicating how I lived but she was there at every turn. Sent to haunt me for my sins. Her light so bright she provoked a shadow from everyone she touched. When a job turns bad quickly altering my life forever Im forced to feel. When nothing is making sense Im forced to face truths I never would recover from. When life drowns you in its cruelty you dont know which way the current will drag you or who youll become once you re-surface.

Melody: I was a daughter I was a student I was a victim Did I have his love? Did I make him feel? Did I have his empathy? When the actions of a soulless killer forces sorrow into my veins I never dreamed the man healing my wounds would be the one to leave the worst scar. His love would scar my soul. Scars are permanent; I will never feel the relief from them. Will I learn to live with them, remember why I have them and learn never to let him close enough to inflict more? Will I eventually cover them like tattoos coating them with new memories, new love and new starts? I didnt know these answers because the pain was too suffocating, the only thing I knew was they will always be under the surface lingering. He had scars too, from his sins. There is nothing that can cover them, they were too deep, too ugly, too dark and they marked us both forever
