

Black Friday should be all about shopping and discounts, but Sean and Sara get more than they bargained for. When they only have a few more items left to buy, screams fill the mall—and for good reason. A man has fallen to his death from the second level. But what exactly happened isn't that straightforward, and normally, Sean and Sara would leave this matter to the police, but the widow was a childhood friend of Sara's. While the police are leaning toward the belief the man intentionally took the leap, the widow is adamant her husband would never jump and asks Sara for her help. Despite the fact there is an unresolved past between the friends—in which Sara feels she let her down—Sara can't turn her back on her now. Fueled by guilt and the need to find answers, Sara convinces Sean they should look into the man's death. But the answers aren't all coming quickly. Mall security has dropped the ball and there's no seeming motive for murder. To find out the truth will take unconventional means, a little undercover work, and the help of their friend Jimmy. And if it all comes together, they just might have this case wrapped up in time for the holidays. Maybe even with a pretty little bow.
