

In Defense of the Queen (Susanna Horenbout and John Parker Series Book 3)

An artist never betrays her patron ... especially one of the worlds most powerful kings. Susanna Horenbout has learned this lesson from the cradle. But when she receives a letter from her father telling her to do just that, she faces a dilemma. Betray Henry VIII, or carry out the request of her fathers employer, Margaret of Austria, and pass secret information to Henrys queen, Katherine of Aragon. Caught between the machinations of her husband and her nephew, the Emperor Charles, Queen Katherine needs all the allies she can get. But what can Susanna really do to help her, and even if she does, will it be enough? Susanna and her betrothed, Parkerone of Henrys most trusted courtiersbalance on the knives edge of treason as they try to make sense of both international and domestic conspiracies. Sometimes, its better the enemy you know ... Book 3 in the Susanna Horenbout & John Parker series.
