

Iole

I aint never knowed no one like him, continued the station-agent reflectively. He made us all look like monkeys, but he was good to us. Ever see a genuine poet, sir? Years ago one was pointed out to me, replied Briggs. Was yours smooth shaved, with large, fat, white fingers? inquired the station-agent. If I remember correctly, he was thin, said Briggs, sitting down on his suit-case and gazing apprehensively around at the landscape. There was nothing to see but low, forbidding mountains, and forests, and a railroad track curving into a tunnel. The station-agent shoved his hairy hands into the pockets of his overalls, jingled an unseen bunch of keys, and chewed a dry grass stem, ruminating the while in an undertone: This poet come here five years ago with all them kids, an the fust thing he done was to dress up his girls in boys pants. Then he went an built a humpy sort o house out of stones and boulders. Then he went to work an wrote pieces for the papers about jay-birds an woodchucks an goddesses. He claimed the woods was full of goddesses. That was his way, sir. The agent contemplated the railroad track, running his eye along the perspective of polished rails: Yes, sir; his name wasand isClarence Guilford, an I fust seen it signed to a piece in the Uticy Star. An next I knowed, folks began to stop off here inquirin for Mr. Guilford. Is this here where Guilford, the poet, lives? sez they; an they come thicker an thicker in warm weather. There wasnt no wagon to take em up to Guilfords, but they didnt care, an they called it a litry shrine, an they hit the pike, women, children, menspeshil the women, an I heard em tellin how Guilford dressed his kids in pants an how Guilford was a famous new litry poet, an they said he was fixin to lecture in Uticy. The agent gnawed off the chewed portion of the grass stem, readjusted it, and fixed his eyes on vacancy.
