

The Angels of Life and Death

The Angels of Life and Death collects eleven science fiction stories from two times winner of the BSFA short story award, including one never before published. From cyberpunk visions of post-human futures to traditional tales of alien encounter and time travel, what connects these tales are Brown's storytelling ability and his concern for the human element. Whether he's writing about telepaths fleeing alien assassins on a vast spaceport city in the Bay of Bengal, or a woman reporter finding true love in the far, far future, Brown imbues his fictions with a concern for character and headlong narrative pace. SF infused with a cosmopolitan and literary sensibility Paul McAuley He is a masterful storyteller Strange Horizons Eric Brown joins the ranks of Graham Joyce, Christopher Priest and Robert Holdstock as a master fabulist Paul di Filippo
