

The Consciousness of Time- Four parallel worlds that keep us engaged

Time is one of the highest laws which runs this universe. Time shouldn't be looked upon as a duration or as a happening, says Krishna to Arjun in the Bhagavad Gita. Neither should it be viewed in the context of past, present, and future. Rather time is that intelligence which causes the division of these time marking periods in your mind. Time has two aspects- the real and the apparent. What is real is based on the consciousness of time and that which is apparent is based on the practical applicability and division of time. In this short book we will focus on the four parallel worlds that exist within the realm of our consciousness and which can be tapped by any individual in this world. No matter what any one has read, studied, or listened to, yours is not an additional source, it is all one needs... Margaret Ferguson UK
