

A Tale of Two Mahlers

There is the Gustav Mahler his contemporaries loved to admire or hate: the brilliant conductor and director of the Imperial Opera in Vienna. Then there's the Gustav Mahler we venerate: the composer of strikingly original music reviled in his own day. Mahler said My time will come in fifty years. As we move into the third millennium, his time has arrived. This program, co-production of the CBC Radio Music Department and the program IDEAS, portrays the Austrian composer not only in terms of his own world, but as a raw, intense, brash, ironic, anxious, longing voice for our world today.
